ANNOTATION NOTES

The user can navigate on the website without being registered or logged-in. At that stage, only some elements will be accessible. Restricted content will prompt the user to register / login.

1. Login or Register

Unlogged users will have a header showing two distinct buttons/actions that will trigger the appropriate pop-up ("Login" or "Register"). The login pop-up will also have an option to register (without the user having to go one step back).

2. Login with Facebook button

Clicking on "Login with Facebook" will direct user to Facebook SSO and go through its authentication flows. Once done, it will redirect back to the website.

Case 1. User has Astro ID Redirect back to the website after authentication - Home Page

Case 2. User doesn't have Astro ID

Redirect back to the website - Create Astro ID Page

3. Astro ID & Password Input Field

The Astro ID field will keep the entry visible while the password field will encrypt the entry

4. Login

Proceeds with the login process connecting to the system authentication server based on the users authentication details. The button is initially inactive until all the input fields have been filled in.

5. Forgot Astro ID or Password

Directs user to forgot Astro ID or Password page and go thought the reset process

6. Register Now

In case the user didn't select "Register" on the previous screen, the option will still available here. It directs the user to the "Join Astro on the Go" screen.

7. Error Message

Displays the relevant error message (using a distinctive color) including a prompt to amend the issue.

NOTES

ANNOTATION NOTES

1. Account Input Field

This is where the user will input:

- First name
- Last name
- Email address

2. Astro ID field

Hovering the icon on the right will display on overlay, showing the rules for Astro ID creation. This overlay will disappear one second after the user's cursor leaves the active area.

3. Password / Password Hint

Password fields entries will be encrypted.

Hovering the icon on the right will display on overlay, showing the rules for password creation. This overlay will disappear one second after the user's cursor leaves the active area.

4. Terms and Conditions agreement

User will need to check the box in order to sign up an account. Clicking on the link will have the T&C opened in a new tab of the user's web browser.

5. Captcha area

The user will need to go through this step before pressing the sign up button.

6. Register button

The button is initially inactive until all the input fields have been filled in, and the T&C checkbox is checked.

7. Login here

Directs user to Login screen

8. Inline validation - Error notification

When the user input doesn't match the system requirements, the related field(s) will get highlighted and a message will appear to explain what the problem is. The "validation check" will be inline, meaning right when the user jumps to the next field. This immediate system feed-back will prevent friction.

9. Email confirmation popup

Email verification popup for successful connection.

ASIDE NOTE

A user can click on "Close" or anywhere outside of a pop-up to get it closed. If doing it by mistake, the informations will be retrieved when the user reopens the pop-up afterwards without refreshing the page.

[1] Browsing & Discovery

[1] Browsing & Discovery Rails

ANNOTATION NOTES

1. Rail - Default state

In most of the cases, the rails will be displayed by default in this manner. A tile partially shown on the right will indicate that more content is available and requires user action.

2. Rail hovered

When the user hovers a rail, the rail navigation will appear:

- arrow on the right if the user hasn't navigated through the rail yet
- arrows on left and right if the user has already passed the first segment of content in the rail (see point 4)

3. Rail's pagination after user clicks on "next" right arrow

This is how a rail will look after the user has clicked on the right arrow. In our example, the screen width only allows for 4 tiles to be fully shown. The fifth one being the one clickable and with an overlay appearing on :hover.

So, in this specific case, if the user clicks on the partially shown 5th tile:

- the rail's position will translate from right to left to show the next rail's pagination/segment
- the 4th tile will be partially shown on the left and have an arrow overlaid on :hover (see point 4)
- the 9th tile will be partially shown on the right and have an arrow overlaid on :hover (see point 4)

The number of fully-shown tiles will vary depending on the screen width. The overlay (color, level of transparency, etc.) will be defined in the visual design.

4. Rail with partially shown tiles on both sides and hovered

When a rail with partially shown tiles on both sides is hovered, arrows will be displayed in an overlay on those partially shown tiles. In this case, the user can navigate in two directions.

5. When only few tiles in a rail

In some cases, only few tiles will appear in a rail. No specific behaviour will be implemented here: the remaining space will be left empty.

6. Loop

The navigation will be "looped", which means from the moment a rail's content overflows the screen, there will never be an "end to the rail" as the first items will be brought to fill the empty spaces on the last segment. As we can see here, the first tile is brought next to the 9th. In this case, the pagination will indicate the last pagination segment. From there, clicking on the right arrow will:

- translate the rail's position by one increment, so that the first tile gets its position back
- update the pagination cues changes so that it highlights the first dot

7. "See all" link

The "See all" will redirect to a page where all the items belonging to that rail will be listed in a grid view. The clickable area will encompass both the text string and the arrow icon.

8. Pagination visual cue

In order to prevent user's confusion, pagination will be visible when hovering the rail and when navigating. This visual cue will help the user to understand the loop behaviour, hence the spacial dimension of the UI. The dot corresponding to the current segment of the rail will be highlighted. The number of dots/segments will depend on the screen width as wider screens can display more tiles. This component won't be clickable.

9. Empty rail scenario

For empty rail scenario, no image will be shown. Instead, a simple gradient will appear. A placeholder text will explain the reason behind this when the user hovers the rail (the copy will be defined by Astro in AppGrid).

Landing Page - Responsive AOTG Web - Ver. 5.0, Round 1 - Mon Oct 24 2016 - By Maxence Le Corre

ANNOTATION NOTES

1. Header

- On large screens, Astro logo and the main categories ("Home", "Sport", "Channels", "TV Shows", "Movies") will be constrained to the left of the screen with a predefined left margin. The search input field as well as the account dropdown menu will be constrained to the right with a predefined right margin. The variable stretchable space being between the last category ("Movies") and the search input field.
- On medium screens, the design will keep this rule. The result will be a smaller space between Store and the search input field. The search input field will be reduced in size if necessary and the user picture reduced or converted to icon.
- On small screens, the main categories will be converted to a tab-bar (Cf. point 6). The header will:
 - Show AOTG logo on the left: taping on it will redirect to home
 - display the page title (truncated if string exceeds the space defined)
 - show the search icon
 - show the user account icon on the left
 - disappear when user scrolls down and reappear when user scrolls up a given amount of pixels. This is important as it will free up some screen estate when the user is in "browsing mode".

2. Hero banner

3. Number of tiles

- On large screens, the rails will show four full tiles plus one partly shown. A left margin will keep some space between the content and the left edge. This margin will be equivalent to 3 to 5% of the total screen-width. The layout's default behaviour when screen-width gets larger will be to make the tiles bigger accordingly. However, above 1500px, adding tiles incrementally so that each tile's width never exceeds 350px, would be a necessary step to preserve a correct balance.
- On medium screens, the rails will show three full tiles plus one partly shown. The left margin will follow the same rule as stated above.
- On small screens, the rails will show two full tiles plus one partly shown. The left margin will follow the same rule as stated above.

4. Arrows

Arrows will be deactivated on the small screens (mobile devices) so that they don't take too much screen estate. Moreover, on mobile devices, the swipe pattern is a more efficient alternative for horizontal scrolling.

5. Footer

On small screens, the footer will be laid following a vertical stack to maximise accessibility.

6. Tab-bar (bottom navigation)

On small screens, the main categories will be replaced by a tab-bar (sticky bottom navigation), mirroring the app component. However, because the information architecture is not the same on the website, the differences will be that we won't have the "Settings" as a tab and "On Demand" will be replaced by "TV Shows" and "Movies". The buttons in the bottom navigation will then be the following:

- 1. Home
- 2. Sports
- 3. Channels
- 4. TV Shows
- 5. Movies

As there are 5 tabs, each one will take 20% of the screen width.

For each tab, the touch target will be:

- width: 20% of the screen width
- height: 100% of the tab-bar's height

ANNOTATION NOTES

1. Geo Restriction pop-up

In the case a user accesses Astro On The Go website from outside Malaysia, a message will be displayed in order to let him/her know that the content might be partly or entirely unaccessible. Rules and copy to be defined by Astro.

This popup will be shown at every user session on the website.

Aside note:

The copy could be edited here as "Welcome to {currentLocation}!" might sound confusing and inappropriate.

ANNOTATION NOTES

1. Hero Banner

2. Default state and Filters

This page has a filtering system that helps the user to narrow down the amount of channels displayed depending on categories.

Default state:

By default, the "All" is selected and the classic rail layout is displayed.

Filter applied:

When clicking on a filter button, only the channels related to the selected filter will appear.

The filter row should always remain persistent on screen (accessible) even if the user scrolls down. This behaviour applies for all screen widths.

3. Personal Rail

Last Watched:

- Display last watched items
- Rail is not visible if there is no content inside that category

4. Editorial Think Analytics Rails

Display Editorial TA rail, e.g.,"What's on now"

5. Editorial MPX

Display Editorial rails curated on AppGrid by Astro team

- MPX rails can be pinned
- MPX rails can be filtered
- MPX rails can be editorial and be shown by user type

6. All rails will be loaded immediately

No lazy loading will be implemented here.

Instead, a clear visual distinction will be made to strengthen the affordance of the swipe navigation pattern.

ADDITIONAL NOTES FOR MOBILE DEVICES

When the user scrolls down, the hero banner will scroll out of the screen (default behaviour). Only the filter will stick at the top to remain accessible. As mobile popular browsers have their chrome reduced when user scrolls down and as the Astro header will have the same behaviour, this will free some space so that we can display both the filters and the tab-bar.

ANNOTATION NOTES

1. Filter button

Clicking on the filter button will make the filter panel appear from the left (following an "ease-out" easing curve) while darkening the page, so that the focus is clearly set on the filters.

2. Metadatas

Listing pages will have the thumbnails associated with a text box formatted as follow:

- for movies: Title + Year | Language | Genre | Genre
- for TV Shows: Title + Language | Genre | Genre
- for listing pages containing both movies and TV Shows:
- Movie: Title + Movie | Language | Genre
- TV Show: Title + TV Show | Language | Genre

3. Filter panel

Filters will be either radio buttons or checkboxes. In the example below, the first filter section is deactivated because the "Most popular Movies" listing page already uses one of the sorting options. It is still shown so that the user understands the logic.

Each filter section has the "Select all" & "Clear all" option.

When the user selects filters, the effect is shown dynamically in the darkened area of the page. This behaviour provides the user with immediate feedback. No need to clic on an "Apply" button.

Clicking either on "Reduce" or outside the filter panel will have it removed from the screen. The listing page will reappear in focus.

4. "Select all" / "Clear All"

For the filters with a lot of option available, the user will be able to either "Select all" checkboxes or "Clear all" checkboxes. These actions will be scoped within their section (either Language or Genre) and not affect other filters.

The logic behind will be the following:

- if there are unchecked checkboxes, the button will be labelled "Select all" and clicking on it will have all the checkboxes of this section checked.
- if all checkboxes are checked, the button will be labelled "Clear all" and clicking on it will have all checkboxes of this section unchecked.

5. Applied filters

The applied filters will be shown below the filter button. Those filters can be removed individually by clicking on the cross located on the left of the tag.

6. Clear all

Filters can be removed all at once by clicking on the "Clear all" link.

Results filtered by type

ANNOTATION NOTES

1. Search field

The search field will react to user click (visual highlight). On user input:

- A cross will appear on the right
- a drop-down with dynamic auto-suggestions will appear; this drop-down will support keyboard navigation (tab and arrow keys) for fast selection.
- The current page will disappear and be replaced by the dynamic results

If the user clicks on the cross, the input will be erased and the results page disappear. The previous page will show again.

2. Filtering

Similarly to the Channel Page, filtering tabs will help to partition the results by type: Movies, TV Shows, Channels, Live Events.

The default state will be set on "All" with a layout using rails.

By clicking on the filters, only the items belonging to the selected type will show up in a grid view.

3. Resulting number of item founds

This number will indicate how many items have been found given the current user input. After applying a filter, the number will react accordingly (scope of search).

4. Rail title

In the default view (no filters applied), results are classified in "type-rails". The number of item founds per content type will be appended in parenthesis.

5. User input highlighted in resulting strings

In order to give more clarity to the user, the input will be highlighted in the resulting strings. This will provide more understanding for why results are showing up and how the search feature works.

6. Term replacement

When the search is scoped to a content type, the string indicating the number of results will be updated. The term "results" will be replaced by the type of content the user has selected. On the above example, it shows: "45 movies for 'The' "

7. Load more

When filtered, the content will appear in a grid view. As a lot of content could still need to be listed, a "Load more" button will be implemented to prevent performance issues.

8. Tabs filtering only when results "overflow" the screen

When all the content of a rail can be shown on screen without "overflowing" (depending on the screen width), the related tab won't appear.

9. No result

If the user input returns no result, it will clearly be indicated. A listing of recommendations will appear (curated list of content).

UX recommendations

Depending on the company's branding / identity / communication's tone, the copy can be adjusted here (and illustration added) in order to turn a "negative-no-result" into something fun or encouraging, for the user to perform another search.

While making these enhancements, be careful: to keep it obvious that the search returned no result (info n1) not to mock the user if using fun copy/illustration/imagery Other improvement like search suggestions (words or expressions) can help the user. The point being avoiding the "dead-end no-result page" which can result in a feeling of failure (user failing in his task - website failing in answering user's needs), hence causing friction.

5. Player

Content poster image displayed. "Play" button not showing if the user isn't entitled to watch the content. The user can play the video in this view, without going into full-screen mode. The player functions will be:

- Play/Pause
- Fast-Forward/Rewind
- Volume
- Zoom
- Settings
- Subtitles
- Audio
- Expand

6. Play trailer button

The "Play trailer" button will be center-aligned with the video player in the case of no "Buy" button. Clicking on "Play Trailer" won't launch the full screen player: this needs to be initiated by the user via the dedicated button in the controls' player bar.

7. Buy button

More details explained in the "Purchase flow" pages

8. "More like this" / "People who watched this also watched" rails

Display a configurable number of movies for each rail. Clicking on individual items directs user to the corresponding detail screen.

9. "See all"

Redirects to a listing page showing all corresponding items in a grid view.

10. "Back" button integrated to the page

In the case the detail page was accessed from a listing page with filters applied or from a search result page, the design will include a "back link" with an appropriate copy. This is to prevent unexpected behaviour when using the browser's back button.

11. Continue watching - Progress Bar

The progress bar shows where the user left off last time he/she watched the movie. User could continue to watch the movie by clicking the "Play" icon.

15. Player's continue watching - Progress Bar

The progress bar shows where the user left off last time he/she watched the movie. The user can continue to watch the movie by clicking the "Play" icon.

Available until date, this string won't show up).

2. "Add to watchlist" and "Share" buttons

- "Add to watchlist" / "Remove from watchlist" (conditional button, depending on if the item is or isn't in user's watchlist)
- "Share" button

3. "More details" button

This button will expand the view and show additional infos (explained above). When clicked, the text switches to "See less"

4. Branded link(s)

Clicking on the link(s) redirects to the related branded page The button will be prefixed with a "See more" (eg. "See more from HBO"). The prefix can either be inside each button or before the buttons (Cf. visual design).

These buttons act as "segments". The way text should be overlaid on the pictures and :hover effect will be defined in visual design stage.

8. Buy Season button

The user can decide to buy a season. Once a season has been bought, the button will disappear and each episode's "buy" button will be converted to "Play"

9. Episode list

Episodes are stacked in a vertical text list. Episodes that have been already watched will have a different visual styling. This as well as the "watched progress bar" will help the user to quickly filter and get back to where he/she left.

10. Watched - Continue watching progress bar

The user will know:

- which episodes he/she has already watched (different text style)
- which episodes he/she hasn't finished watching (progress bar)

11. Selected episode

The selected episode will expand in the list and show the synopsis as well as the "Share" pink oval button. If the user is entitled to watch the selected episode, the "Buy" button will be replaced by a "Play" button. Clicking on it will launch the player directly in full screen mode. Exiting the full screen mode will have the video playing in default mode (page being back at its initial scroll position).

The episode synopsis in the upper part of the page (next to the player) will be updated once the user clicks either on "Play" or "Resume". Otherwise, selecting/ expanding and episode in the episode list won't update the upper part of the page. Otherwise, users could be confused if the page changed when they just wanted to have a look at the episode list below while keeping their video player ready to resume the episode they left off. This would cause "unexpected page update".

16. Season bought

If the user has bought a season, the "Buy season" button will disappear and all the episodes will have a "Play" button or "Resume" for the last episode left unfinished.

The "Buy season" button will be replaced by a text bloc indicating that the titles listed are available for watching as well as the their availability time.

ANNOTATION NOTES

1. Title + Details

Visible by default (default view)

- Movie title
- Metadata subtext: Genre, Genre, year, Length, SeasonCount
- Synopsis
- Branded link(s)

Visible if click on "More details" (expanded view)

- "Available until" date
- Audio & Subtitles
- Director
- Cast

When a metadata isn't available, it isn't shown to the user (e.g. if there's no Available until date, this string won't show up).

2. "More details" button

This button will expand the view and show additional infos (explained above). When clicked, the text switches to "See less"

3. Branded link(s)

Clicking on the link(s) redirects to the related branded page The button will be prefixed with a "See more" (eg. "See more from HBO"). The prefix can either be inside each button or before the buttons (Cf. visual design).

4. Player

Hero image + "Play" icon. Clicking on the "Play" icon will launch the player (episode).

5. "Buy" buttons

More details explained in the "Purchase flow" pages

6. Season selector

The user can select which season to have displayed in the list. These buttons act as "segments".

7. Episode list

Episodes are stacked in a vertical text list

8. Watched - Continue watching progress bar

The user will know:

9. Selected episode

The selected episode will be visually highlighted in the list.

10. "More like this" / "People who watched this also watched" rails Display a configurable number of movies for each rail.

Clicking on individual items directs user to the corresponding detail screen.

11. "See all"

Redirects to a listing page showing all corresponding items in a grid view. Both the arrow and the text will be clickable so that the click target is wide enough and easy to reach.

12. Season selector behaviour

Those close-up explain how the season selector will behave in different situations: the season options will be horizontally center-aligned and fill the horizontal space until overflowing the screen width. Then, arrows will appear for navigation affordance.

 which episodes he/she has already watched (different text style) • which episodes he/she hasn't finished watching (progress bar)

[2] Detail Pages Purchase Flow

Purchase Flow Screens

AOTG Web - Ver. 5.0, Round 1 - Mon Oct 24 2016 - By Maxence Le Corre

"Buy" button from Detail page

First step of the payment process: from a detail page, the user clicks on the "Buy from {cheapestAvailablePrice}" button.

Pricing options

Users will be reminded of the action and of the content title.

- In the case of a TV Show, information about the title will be more specific: • If the user buys at the TV Show's parent level (the full TV Show), the TV Show name will be indicated just like in the case of a movie
- If the user buys at the season level in the case of a seasoned TV Show, the format could be the following: "{seasonNumber} of {tvshowName}"
- If the user buys an episode from a seasoned TV Show, the format could be the following: "S.{seasonNumber} Ep.{episodeNumber} of {tvshowName}"
- If the user buys an episode from a TV Show's Boxset, the format could be the following: "Episode {episodeNumber} of {tvshowName}"

This step is also where the user can decide between a TVOD or SVOD payment model. Several options could be displayed here but Astro should set a limitation: the best experience would be for the user to see all the options available at one sight without any action being required (scroll). Moreover, as per Hick's law, the more options for the user to "inspect", the higher will be the risk to discourage him/her and having him/her to cancel the purchase process.

Astro Card selection (edge case)

Only in the case of DTH users owning several Astro STB. This covers what could be considered as an edge case. In most of the cases, DTH will only possess one STB and won't be shown this screen as the backend will select the only card linked to their ID.

RECAP OF THE PAYMENT MODES PER USER TYPES

Payment modes that diff user types are entitled to

		Cancel	Nex

Phone call prompt (DTH users only)

For some types of products, a DTH user might be asked to make a phone call to make the purchase. This is how the pop-up will look in such scenario.

Password input

The password prompt will always be shown, except for users logged-in via Facebook.

Password input (error scenario)

Confirmation for DTH users

DTH users will not go through the external Astro Payment Gateway. After password input, if their password is valid, this screen will show them that the content has been added to their bill.

Alert/Error message

In the case the backend detects an error, a pop-up will be displayed using "Human language" (no nebulous technical error number/code should be shown here). The AOTG Support phone number could be indicated in the text of the message if necessary.

A contextual button could also be displayed when possible: redirecting to the appropriate anchor in Help & FAQ page or to the Contact page or to user's Settings if something can be fixed by the user there, etc.

This message could be displayed after a short while (depending on the server/connection) during which an animated spinner will be shown to communicate that a backend check is being processed.

- the default view
- the zoomed view

5. Settings

Subtitles & Audio

- The user will be able to choose subtitle and audio.
- Only one option can be selected at a given time
- One option must always be selected
- If there is only one option, that is the option with the check mark
- The selections must be persistent if language is available (eg: if the user picks English as a subtitle language for video 1, it will be automatically selected for video 2 if available.

The settings pop-up won't auto-disappear when the user makes a selection. It will disappear when the user clicks on the settings icon again (the current implementation won't allow to close/minimise menus when clicking on the playback area). The controls will slide out after 5 seconds of inactivity (no cursor movement detected).

ANNOTATION NOTES

1. Account details

Account details displays the following informations:

- User Astro ID (Cannot be edited)
- User first name
- User last name
- User email (check whether the email is already taken, validation process when user
- updates the email)
- User password:
- the strength of the password is communicated visually (when edit)
- if the password doesn't comply with the system rules, a message will be displayed immediately after the field is left (inline form validation: Cf. point 2).

2. Inline form validation

Jumping from one filed to another (either by using mouse or tab key) will trigger a validation check. That way, users will be notified in timely manner when fields need to be corrected.

3. Apply changes

If no changes, the buttons will be deactivated.

If changes were made, they will need to be applied. If the user leaves the page without applying the changes, a pop-up alert will be displayed (Cf. point 5).

4. Password strength

The password strength will be illustrated while user is typing to provide immediate feedback.

5. Alert pop-up

If the user has edited some settings and tries to jump to another Setting's section or to leave the page without applying them, an alert will pop-up, asking for confirmation. The pop-up will specify the input fields on which changes have been detected and propose 3 options:

- "Let me double check" : clicking on this button will dismiss the pop-up so that the user can check
- "No, discard those changes" clicking on this button will proceed with the redirection without applying the changes
- 3. "Yes, confirm those changes" clicking on this button will apply the changes and proceed with the redirection

Setting: Link to STB

AOTG Web - Ver. 5.0, Round 1 - Mon Oct 24 2016 - By Maxence Le Corre

ANNOTATION NOTES

1. Unfolding pattern

Dividing the process in 3 simple steps will help to decrease the complexity and cognitive load.

These progressive unfolding sections will indicate to the user that this linkage requires 3 steps.

2. Link to Set Top Box

The user can select the STB he/she owns: the pictures above the buttons will help the choice/selection.

Clicking on the "Next" button will be necessary to expand the section 2 of the stepped process. The "Next" button will be clickable only if one STB is selected.

3. Connect with

For users who possess an Astro STB (DTH users), 2 options available:

- Smart Card number
- Account number

For users who possess an NJOI STB (NJOI users), 1 option available: Smart Card number

An Image depicting either the Smart Card or the bill will be shown, giving a hint for the users to find the Smart Card number or Account number.

4. ID Type and number

The 3rd and last section of the process. ID type will be defaulted to NRIC.

5. Error

No inline validation here. The backend will only validate when all the informations are ready. Therefore, we can have two conditions not matching:

- the type of STB not matching the Smart Card or Account number
- the ID type not matching the ID number

The error message should be clear enough so that the user knows where to make changes.

6. Successful linkage pop-up

The user will have a pop-up indicating that the linkage has been successfully done.

7. Page layout when the STB is linked

The page will have this layout for users with linked STB. A phone number will be shown for the users who want to unlink their STB. Astro will define the copy for this option.

Recommendation:

The copy used here should use conditional ("If you want to unlink...") and not sound like an invite. Otherwise, some users could think that unlinking is a necessary step.

o on the Go @2016 / Measat Broadcast Network Systems Sdn. Bhd. (240064-A)

ANNOTATION NOTES

1. Device management

Users will see how many devices are activated under their account and be able to switch one out in order to activate another one (within the limitation of one switch-out per calendar month).

2. Edit name button

Users will be given the option to edit the name of their activated devices by clicking on the "Edit name" button.

3. "Switch out this device" button

Astro on the Go @2016 / Measat Broadcast Network Systems Sdn. Bhd. (240064-A)

Clicking on it will switch out the related device. Once switched out, the device disappears from Device Management's list.
User can have until X devices registered to their Astro account. Once this threshold is reached, the user will need to switch out some to be able to playback from others.
As users can only switch out one device per calendar month, the button will appear as disabled when switch outs are maxed out.
If the device used to access Device Management is a registered device, switch out links/buttons need to appear as disabled.
Prompt message when user has mayed out for the month

(Please refer to Error Conditions Spreadsheet)

- the available number of switch out for the user (number to be defined by Astro)

In the case of zero switched out available, a message could be added to explain the situation (copy to be defined by Astro).

Example:

"Device switch-out available: 0. You have already switched out x device(s) this month. You need to wait for {nextMonth} to be able to switch x device(s) out again."

5. Log out current device pop-up confirmation

If the users decide to switch out the current device, a confirmation pop will be displayed to confirm the choice.

ADDITIONAL NOTES

- Numbers of switch-outs can be configurable.
- Registered devices required for playback, but unlimited devices allowed for login/browsing.
- If there are no devices registered yet, handling message/flow to be in place.
- The user on the device used to access Device Management can switch out any of the other registered devices listed if:
 - the switch-out quota is still available
 - AND if the device used is not a current registered device.

you will need to switch out some to be able to connect from others. You can switch out one device per calendar month.

You have currently 1/3 devices activated under your Astro account. Device switch out available: 1

HELP & FAQ

SUBSCRIBERS TERMS & CONDITIONS

ANNOTATION NOTES

Help and FAQ's content will depend on user type (NJOI, SA, and DTH).

1. Category selection

This "category bloc" will be fixed while the textual content in the middle of the page will be vertically scrollable. That way, the navigation inside the Help & FAQ keeps reachable.

2. Row height

The height of the category sections (in the category selector on the left) will be the same for all categories and the text will be vertically middle-aligned.

The active category will be prominent. A CSS :hover state will be defined (background-color change) for inactive categories to strengthen the affordance: the full row area will be made reactive to :hover and clickable.

3. Text content

The text will be centre aligned in the page. The categories' bloc will be positioned on its left relatively.

Maximum of 85 character per line (including spaces and punctuation). This limitation will help to keep the text readable.

4. Accordions menus for small screen width devices

Accordions menus will be displayed on small screen width devices. The accordions headings will be persistent when an accordion is expanded, so that collapsing is always reachable without needing to scroll back.

Subscription and Upsell

Subscription Pages

AOTG Web - Ver. 5.0, Round 1 - Mon Oct 24 2016 - By Maxence Le Corre

ANNOTATION NOTES

User would land on these pages after: clicking on content tiles from a subscription rail on the Homepage • clicking on content tiles from a subscription rail on the Store page

1. Banner

There will be a hero banner promoting the related subscription package. This banner will be different to the banner component used elsewhere because the height needs to be smaller in order to keep the CTA above the fold. It will just be a center-aligned single image (no auto-rotation). Margins will appear on both sides in the case of large screens.

Upsell Prompts

AOTG Web - Ver. 5.0, Round 1 - Mon Oct 24 2016 - By Maxence Le Corre

Up-sell prompt - Scenario 1

Up-sell prompt - Scenario 4

ANNOTATION NOTES

Those upset prompts will be triggered when:

- 1. a DTH non-AA user attempts to play a content from a detail page while not being entitled to watch it.
- 2. a DTH non-AA user reaches the maximum amount of free plays. (E.g: after a user has played "x" times (number is configurable) any video, he/ she will be prompted with the up-sell message)
- 3. a DTH non-AA user gets back on the website after a defined amount of time (time duration is configurable)
- 4. a user has just linked his/her STB and is detected as being DTH non-AA

The up-sell messages are configurable in AppGrid. The copy in the attached screens are just serving as examples.

Each scenario can be configured with specific microcopy.

Pop-up's title / explanation text / CTA's labels should be made clear enough so that the user can understand each option offered from there.

ASIDE NOTES

Covering each scenario with specific microcopy is highly recommended UXwise. Microcopy is often neglected, which means there's room here to get one step above competitors. This applies for up-sell scenarios as well as other parts of the experience and should be part of a global strategy where the tone of communication aligns with the company's branding.

From the steerco, we have decided that for web and tablet (bigger screens) we will implement season images for the seasons listing. Perhaps, seasons as images can be listed horizontally above the episode listings then? All seasons shown, and as the web changes to smaller breakpoints, the seasons can be horizontally acove the episode listings then? All seasons shown, and as the web changes to smaller breakpoint to scale? Are the break point layouts to scale? Page 15 - keep search icon on right, next to profile image. Like Android Page 23 Filter treatment - maybe it's just wires, but the implementation of the check list and various "close" and "reduce" text links seem simplistic and dated. Does the catalogue list update in real time every time an item is checked/selected? If so, I love this! If not, can we do this?! So instead of overlaying the filter on the left, perhaps we can implement it to expand at the top, with a fresher approach to selection and expansion/collapse.
